

Convolutional neural networks use convolution layers and pooling.

Transformers rely on self-attention over token sequences.